CMIS Explorer

Bits In Glass
Your Business. Optimized.

Bits In Glass' CMIS Explorer utility allows you to connect your Appian environment to an external CMIS (content management information system) compatible repository. With CMIS Explorer, you can seamlessly work with your external repository in Appian itself. No longer do your users have to balance files and tasks between two or more systems. CMIS Explorer allows users to perform multiple different actions on files and folders.

WHAT IS AN APPIAN UTILITY?

An Appian utility is a ready to use component that allows the simple integration of pre-built capabilities from other Appian developers and third-party services into new and existing applications. Utilities provide customers with a "running head start" so they can quickly incorporate functionality that would typically require several weeks of research and development if starting from scratch. Appian Utilities reduce implementation timelines and increase an application's ability to achieve quick return on investment.

The best part about Appian utilities is that they're tools you can quickly incorporate into your business application, requiring only minor modifications.

CMIS EXPLORER UTILITY

Our CMIS Explorer utility helps integrate external document management systems with Appian applications. By extending the already provided CMIS connector functionality, CMIS Explorer allows Appian applications to fully leverage document management systems functionality while simultaneously layering Appian's process knowledge on top of the documents. When combined with case management applications such as contract management or ordering, users can upload and download documents directly from Appian and adhere to retention policies from underlying document management systems.
